PREFACE.

THIS book is designed for the exclusive use of Pastors of all denominations, and is therefore entirely distinct from Church Registers.

Every Minister who has been engaged in his work for a series of years, without having kept a complete record of his labors, must feel the great disadvantage arising from such neglect. And yet, we apprehend this want of system among Ministers, is to be attributed largely to the fact that no complete register has been put into their hands at the beginning of their work; and they have not felt the importance of it, until it seemed a hopeless task to attempt the remedy of the evil. The advantages arising from a systematic registering of all pulpit labors, and a complete record of all the tangible results of professional work, can scarcely be overestimated.

Aside from the personal satisfaction thus afforded the Pastor, valuable statistics may be gathered, interesting both to his own people and the world at large.

The Register is sufficiently large to last a Minister, performing an ordinary amount of professional work, about ten years, each part bearing a proper proportion to all the rest.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE OF REGISTER.

SERMONS.—Each sermon should have its number and title distinctly marked on the outside page. Its number should also be placed on the margin of the "Study Bible," opposite the text. Thus reference may easily be made to the sermon on any given passage of Scripture. The first column refers to the whole number of pulpit services. Each time a sermon is preached it must be entered on the Register, and the "No. of the Service" marked on the manuscript. This will show at a glance both how often a sermon has been delivered, and the place or places where it is recorded in the Register. No other record need be kept on the manuscript itself.

Under the head of "Occasion" should be indicated only special sermons, such as have been prepared for Thanksgiving, Communion, Ordination services, etc. Ordinarily this column would be left blank, as it is designed simply to aid in referring to sermons adapted to special occasions.

The number of times a sermon has been preached will be indicated by a figure in the appropriate column. The size of the congregation may be indicated either by figures or letters.

BAPTISMS.—When the person baptized is an adult, the word "Adult" may be inserted instead of the names of the parents.

COMMUNICANTS.—It is left to the option of the Pastor whether the whole number of communicants be recorded, or only those received under his own ministry. Where one or both the parents are Christians, it may be well to notice the fact under the head of "Remarks."

PASTORAL VISITS.—The list of families should be arranged alphabetically. The time of a visit should be indicated according to the numerical mode of writing dates. Example: June 23d, being the 23d day of the 6th month, should be written $^{6}/_{23}$. Absence from home, sickness in the family, or anything requiring the Pastor's special attention, may be indicated by a small letter. This part of the Register is so arranged as to allow two visits a year to each family.

INDEX OF TEXTS.—All volumes of printed sermons, and such other books in the library as may contain apt illustrations or expositions of Scripture, should be numbered. Write the chapter and the verse illustrated, under the proper heading; then, opposite, the number of the volume and page on which the illustration may be found. Thus, at a glance, the Pastor may know whether or not he has anything in his library on any given text.
